Wilbur E. Gilham

Outstanding Biology Teacher of the Year

Pennsylvania
Award
1962

Pennsylvania, New York
New Jersey
Regional Award
1962

Each year the National Association of Biology Teachers and The American Institute of Biological Sciences choose an "Outstanding Biology Teacher."

This honor made Mr. Gilham eligible to compete for regional and national honors with all other state winners.

On Friday, August 10, 1962, he received notification that he had won the regional title for education in the Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey area.

Mr. Gilham has been teaching in Philipsburg-Osceola High School for five years. During these years, he has devoted all of his time and interest in the field of biology. We all know how deserving of this award he is by his devotion, interest, and teaching methods. We are very proud to have Wilbur E. Gilham as the head of the science department of our school.

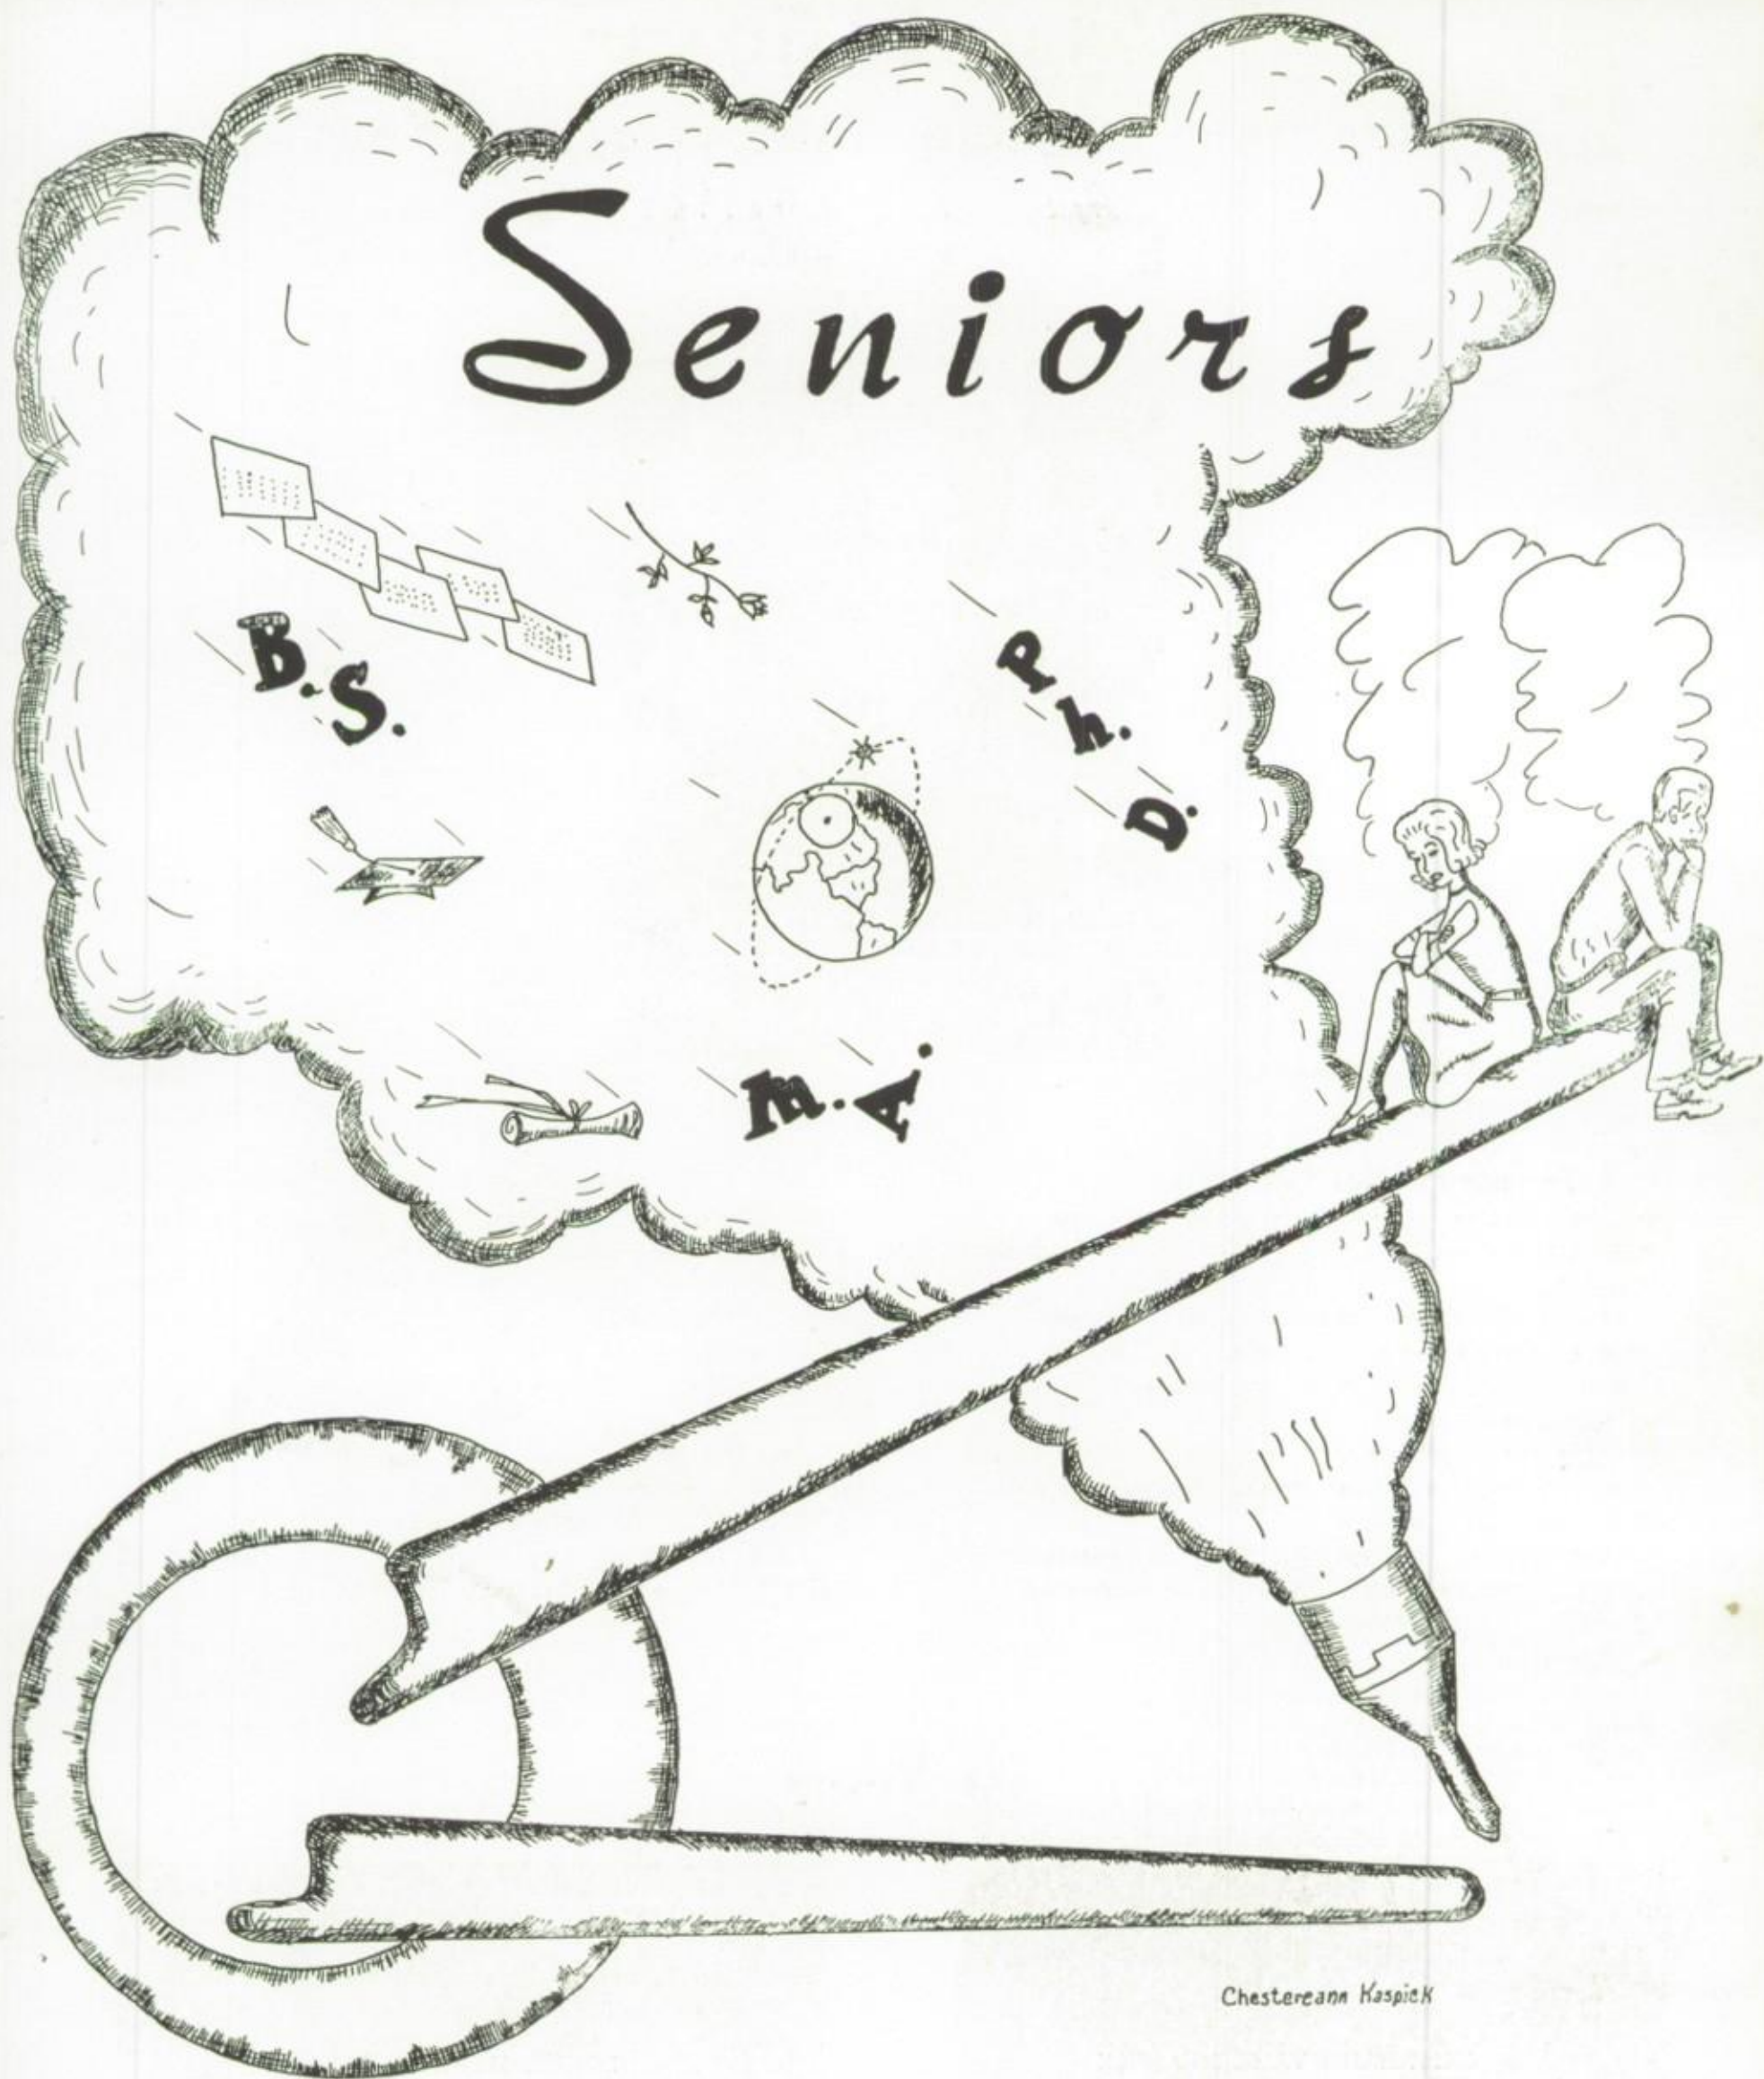

As the years go on, we hope Mr. Gilham will remain with P. O. H. S. and continue his success and work in the field of biology.

We can truly say that Wilbur E. Gilham is "The Outstanding Biology Teacher of the Year."

There is a classic story about a mother who sent her little boy to the store to get five pounds of plums. When he returned, she telephoned the grocer and complained that the bag of plums weighed only three pounds. "Madam", said the grocer, "I suggest you weigh your boy."

When you leave this school you will be weighed again and again throughout your life, not for plums, but for some satisfying evidence of growth—cultural and spiritual growth. The weighing, or testing, will be carried on everywhere, for people who believe that the purpose of education is to improve the quality of human living, will measure you in such areas as manners, self-control, appreciation of the arts, good humor, loyalties and tolerance, as well as intellectual competence.

As you are weighed, your school will be measured in terms of its effectiveness in preparing you to meet life's situations. May you bring credit to yourself and to your school is my wish.

M. S. Hancock,
Principal

192. Timothy E. Woodside—Screamin', hot, 36½ horsepower Volkswagon—To keep my "LIST" bigger than Dave's.

Junior Rotarians

The Rotary Club of Philipsburg each year invites outstanding members of the senior class to attend their weekly meetings. This honor is accorded the seniors on the basis of scholarship, citizenship, and participation in extra-curricular activities. The final selection is made by the faculty.

The seniors selected, a boy and a girl, attend the weekly meetings for one month. They are treated as regular members, and at the end of their visit as Junior Rotarians they give a talk on their impressions of adult community life.
